Since the period of my specialization in General Surgery, at the First Department of Surgery, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, until today, I am continuously active in the field of medical research. My research work resulted in the publications in recognized (SCI) medical journals, in international scientific meetings and conferences, while some of them are still in progress. The work I have been involved in as a principal researcher or as a member of the research team, is both experimental and clinical/laboratory. The research protocols involve mainly the fields of General Surgery and Surgery of the Liver - Biliary Tract - Pancreas and their related pathology and histopathology.
